Celle-ci était la véritable lumière, celle qui, en venant dans le monde, éclaire tout être humain.

uh NEW ROLES

Our Campus Crusade team is abuzz with excitement over the new ministry/office space that is coming together. The building has been completely redone; desks, chairs and tables are being delivered next week; and soon it will be our space. Our space to connect, our space to work and meet, a place to serve God and advance His Kingdom! But this space desperately needs organization. Loads of questions are floating about: where will we put the copier, how will we reserve the meeting room, what about supplies and cleaning? We need an office manager, and May has accepted the job. Organization and foresight are her strengths, and she's good at making decisions. I'm happy she's found such a good fit.

At the beginning of the school year our local campus director told the team that after five years he will step out of the role to serve in other ways within Campus Crusade. Yannick has seen the Rennes campus ministry through some turbulent times, but he leaves it in remarkable health. Things have grown in the past couple years, a positive note to his leadership. I honestly didn't think much about this change. Then during a conference the national campus director asked me who I thought would be a good person to take on leading the Rennes campus team. When I asked who was on his list, I was a little shocked that he said my name. I had never thought about it. The list was short, very short, and the challenge there – to take on the role of campus director. It seems God has in some ways been preparing me for this, so voilà, the second new role. It's with some healthy fear that I accept the responsibility, but I keep clinging to the fact that God shows Himself strong in our weakness!

deux TRANSFORMATION

This past weekend Efrem turned 6. He invited four friends from school to witness the transformation. For almost a year he's been asking for a transformers cake, and he finally got one. Efrem and his friends bowled over Decepticons (plastic bottles we had transformed), did a relay race, and whacked a piñata that May and Efrem had made. It was a lot of fun. Efrem is growing up fast. He's very observant and a good thinker. With just a little supervision, he's building a Lego Star Wars ship supposedly for those 9 and up.

Please pray...

- for May's new role as the Rennes office manager.
- that Dan will fully trust in the Lord as he takes on leading the local campus team.
- for Efrem and his relationship with Jesus to grow.
